Board of Directors
James Harold Goode, Jr.

We have examined the financial statements of James Harold Goode, Jr. for the year ended December 31, 2001, and have issued our report thereon dated February 19, 2002. As part of our examination, we made a study and evaluation of the system of internal accounting control to the extent we considered necessary to evaluate the system as required by generally accepted auditing standards and Rule 17a-5 of the Securities and Exchange Commission. This study and evaluation included the accounting system, the practices and procedures followed by the Company (i) in making the periodic computations of aggregate indebtedness and net capital under Rule 17a-3(a)(11) and (ii) for determining compliance with the exemptive provisions of Rule 15c3-3. We did not review the practices and procedures followed by the Company (i) in making the quarterly securities examinations, counts, verifications and the recordation of differences required by Rule 17a-13 (ii) in complying with the requirements for prompt payment for securities of Section 4(c) of Regulation T of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve system; and (iii) in obtaining and maintaining physical possession or control of all fully paid and excess margin securities of customers as required by Rule 15c3-3, because the Company does not carry security accounts for customers or perform custodial functions relating to customer securities. Rule 17a-5 states that the scope of the study and evaluation should be sufficient to provide reasonable assurance that any material weakness existing at the date of our examination would be disclosed. The purposes of our study and evaluation were to determine the nature, timing, and extent of the auditing procedures necessary for expressing an opinion on the Company's financial statements and to provide a basis for reporting material weaknesses in internal accounting control under Rule 17a-5. Our study and evaluation was more limited than would be necessary to express an opinion on the system of internal accounting control taken as a whole.

The management of James Harold Goode, Jr. is responsible for establishing and maintaining a system of internal accounting control. In fulfilling this responsibility, estimates and judgements by management are required to assess the expected benefits and related costs of control procedures. The objectives of a system are to provide management with reasonable, but not absolute, assurance that assets are safeguarded against loss from unauthorized use of disposition, and that transactions are executed in accordance with management's authorization and recorded properly to permit the preparation of financial statements in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

Richard E. Crouch, Jr.

CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT

Because of the inherent limitations in any system of internal accounting control, errors or irregularities may nevertheless occur and not be detected. Also, projection or any evaluation of the system to future periods is subject to the risk that procedures may become inadequate because of changes in conditions or that the degree of compliance with the procedures may deteriorate.

Our study and evaluation made for the limited purposes described in the first paragraph would not necessarily disclose all material weaknesses in the system. Accordingly, we do not express an opinion on the system of internal accounting control of James Harold Goode, Jr. taken as a whole, or on the practices and procedures described in the first paragraph. However, (i) no facts come to our attention that the conditions for exemption from Rule 15c3-3 had not been complied with during the period and (ii) our study and evaluation disclosed the following conditions that we believe results is more than a relatively low risk that errors or irregularities in amounts that would be material in relation to the financial statements of James Harold Goode, Jr. may occur and not be detected within a timely period.

Effective internal control requires that the accounting system have checks and balances so that no transaction is handled in its entirety by a single individual. A limited number of personnel in your company precludes such control and, accordingly, until the growth of your company is sufficient to warrant the employment of additional personnel to effect the necessary segregation of duties and functions,, internal control will continue to be deficient in this respect. This condition was considered in determining the nature, timing and extent of audit tests applied in our examination of the December 31, 2001 financial statements and this report does no affect our report on these financial statements dated February 19, 2002.

This report is intended solely for the use of management, the Securities and Exchange Commission and other agencies which regulate the activities of securities brokers and dealers and should not be used for any other purposes.
